

Your Life Care Plan Changes With You

We talked about it before I had a baby.

What would happen now and what would I want now and that might be different in 20 or 30 years so it felt a little bit easier to know that I can change my mind that things change my life might look different and I can always revisit it and make a different decision in a few years or a few decades.

I started doing this a long time ago and I've actually revised it many many times and each time I revise it I talked to my agent about what I've done. Just to bring them up to date.
